SEO Audit Report

Prepared by Start Advertising

June 2026

Confidential — Prepared Exclusively for TecHouse Corporation

Your SEO Health Score: 38 / 100

Your website has real strengths to build on — a clean product catalog with 15 dedicated pages, a well-structured navigation, and a secure, professionally hosted platform on HubSpot. What's holding your score back are optimization gaps that are entirely fixable, not fundamental problems with the site itself. The good news: with focused attention over the next 4–8 weeks, a score of 65–70 is a realistic and achievable target.

What We Found

Our audit identified issues across 6 key areas. Each one is currently costing you visibility.

Issue Area	Finding	Impact
Search Snippets	No meta descriptions exist on any page — Google writes its own, often poorly	Buyers scroll past you in results
Broken Pages	/contact, /services, and /blog all return 404 errors	Lost traffic and damaged credibility
Missing Structured Data	No schema markup found — products are invisible to rich result features	Competitors with schema rank higher
Weak Authority Signals	No team bios, no credentials, no certifications, no testimonials on site	Buyers can't verify your expertise
No Content Marketing	No blog or resources section exists on the site	Missing 60%+ of B2B industrial search traffic
Local SEO Gap	No Google Business Profile confirmed; no geographic keywords in content	Invisible to regional packaging buyers

Where You're Losing Clients Right Now

Local and Regional Search

Buyers in Southern California and across the US who search for "poly bag machine equipment supplier" or "film conversion machinery California" are not finding your business. Your city (Placentia, CA) and region are not referenced anywhere in your page content — which means Google has no geographic signal to rank you for local or regional searches, even though your physical location is a competitive advantage.

Product Searches by Specialty

Your 15 product pages are a strong foundation, but they're missing the keywords buyers actually use. A packaging engineer searching for "zipper sealing system for poly bag machine" or "round bottom sealer attachment" may never find your page because the titles and descriptions don't include those terms. Every product page is a missed ranking opportunity right now.

First Impressions in Search Results

When your site does appear in Google, the search snippet — the title and description a buyer reads before clicking — is being auto-generated by Google because no meta descriptions exist. Auto-generated snippets are typically low quality. Buyers comparing 3–4 vendors in search results will click the listing that speaks to their need. Yours currently doesn't.

Trust and Credibility at First Visit

B2B buyers evaluating a significant machinery purchase want to know who they're dealing with. Your website has no team names, no certifications, no customer testimonials, and no case studies. This doesn't mean your company lacks credibility — it means that credibility isn't visible on your website, which is where buying decisions begin.

What's Working In Your Favor

- Strong product depth: 15 dedicated product pages with technical specifications give you a content foundation most small manufacturers lack
- Secure, professional platform: HubSpot CMS is enterprise-grade, fast, mobile-responsive, and does not require a developer to make SEO changes
- Clear site structure: Your navigation is clean and logical — products are easy to find, which is good for both users and Google
- Global customer base: The fact that your machines operate in countries worldwide is a powerful credibility signal — it just needs to be made more visible and specific
- Parent company affiliation: Your relationship with Fruth Custom Packaging adds institutional credibility that should be highlighted more prominently
- YouTube presence: Product videos exist and are linked from product pages — with minor additions (embeds + video schema), these could significantly boost engagement and rankings

The Opportunity Ahead

The flexible packaging market is growing, and B2B industrial buyers have shifted almost entirely to online research before ever contacting a vendor. In the poly bag machine attachment space, most competitors have thin online presences — which means the bar to rank well is lower than in many industries, and early movers gain durable advantages.

Specific keyword opportunities that are currently uncontested include: "custom poly bag machine attachments," "film conversion equipment supplier USA," and "how to upgrade a poly bag machine with a zipper sealer" — all of which represent real buyer intent with low competition and zero content from TechHouse today.

With the right content and optimization strategy in place, TechHouse has a realistic path to becoming the authoritative online resource for poly bag machine attachments in North America — generating qualified inbound leads from buyers who are already looking for exactly what you make.

Recommended Next Steps

Based on our audit, we have identified three tiers of work:

Quick Wins — First 1–2 Weeks

- Write and publish meta descriptions for all 15 product pages, the homepage, About, and Contact Us
- Fix the broken /contact page — redirect it to /contact-us so no visitors hit a dead end
- Submit your XML sitemap to Google Search Console and verify your property
- Add alt text to all product images for both accessibility and image search visibility

Medium-Term — Weeks 2–8

- Add Organization and Product structured data (schema) to the homepage and all product pages
- Add team bio(s) to the About page — even one named person with a title and short bio makes a measurable difference
- Optimize all 15 product page titles to include buyer-search keywords alongside product names
- Launch a blog or resources section and publish the first 2–3 foundational articles

Longer-Term — Strategic Investments

- Build a dedicated Custom Solutions landing page targeting buyers searching for attachment customization
- Develop an Industry Applications section to help buyers self-identify (packaging converters, food & bev, e-commerce)
- Build your citation presence in ThomasNet, PackagingDigest.com, and PMMI member directories
