SCORE: 47 / 100 — BASELINE AUDIT

This report covers the SEO health of wanderingfreecounseling.com as of September 2026. Scores below 50 indicate foundational issues that are actively limiting your visibility in Google search results.

WHAT THIS SCORE MEANS FOR YOUR PRACTICE

WHY THIS MATTERS

A score of 47/100 means your website has significant gaps that make it difficult for Google to understand, trust, and rank your pages. When someone in Dublin or Columbus searches for "EMDR therapy" or "trauma therapist," your site is not positioned to appear — even though you offer exactly what they're looking for.

Pages with missing meta descriptions	6 of 6 pages — 100%
Pages without structured data (schema)	6 of 6 pages — 100%
Pages with broken or missing title tags	2 of 6 pages
Pages with thin content (under 500 words)	2 of 6 pages
Location mismatch in search listings	Yes — title says "Columbus" but address is Dublin
URL with a typo	Yes — Insurance page URL has a spelling error
Therapist credentials visible to Google	No — LPCC and EMDR certification are not machine-readable
Dedicated therapist bio page	No — "Meet Erin" nav link goes to homepage
Fully optimized pages	0 of 6

/ – Homepage

CRITICAL No meta description

Google has nothing to show in search results under your link. This directly reduces clicks from potential clients.

CRITICAL No structured data (schema)

Google can't confirm who you are, where you're located, or what services you offer. This affects local search and map visibility.

HIGH Main heading doesn't describe what you do

Your homepage heading is just your practice name — missing the opportunity to tell both Google and new visitors what you specialize in.

HIGH Location mismatch — "Columbus" in title, Dublin is your address

Inconsistent location signals confuse Google and hurt local search rankings for Dublin-area clients.

/emdr – EMDR Therapy + Intensives

CRITICAL Page title contains no keywords — just your practice name

The browser tab title and the blue link Google shows in search currently reads "Wandering Free Counseling, LLC." Someone searching for EMDR therapy won't know this page is for them.

CRITICAL No meta description

This is your strongest page — great content, excellent heading, real pricing. Without a meta description, Google auto-generates one that often undersells you.

MEDIUM No structured data

Your EMDR intensive pricing ($300, $600, $1,200) and service details aren't visible to search engines in a readable format.

/childhoodtrauma – Childhood Trauma Therapy

CRITICAL No meta description

Anyone searching for "childhood trauma therapy Columbus Ohio" who sees your link won't have enough information to click through.

MEDIUM Page content is thin — approximately 675 words

Google favors pages that thoroughly cover a topic. Competing therapy sites in Columbus often have 1,000+ words on specialty pages.

MEDIUM No structured data

/perinatal-trauma – Perinatal Trauma Therapy

CRITICAL No meta description

CRITICAL Very thin content — approximately 375 words

One of your key specialty pages has less content than most blog posts. At 375 words, the page struggles to rank for any meaningful search terms.

MEDIUM No structured data

MEDIUM Missing alt text on images

Images without alt text are invisible to search engines and create accessibility issues.

/insurancesandfees – Insurance & Fees

CRITICAL URL has a typo — "fees" has three e's

The typo is visible when you share this link with prospective clients and undermines trust. It also limits how well the page can rank.

CRITICAL No meta description

MEDIUM Page title missing practice name and location

Title reads "Insurances and Fees" — no location, no brand. Insurance-seeking clients in Dublin searching Google won't find this page.

/contactme – Contact

CRITICAL Page title is a tagline, not a search term

The title "Healing Starts Here" is meaningful to visitors but tells search engines nothing. This page will not rank for local searches like "contact trauma therapist Dublin Ohio."

CRITICAL No meta description

MEDIUM No structured data

This page has your full address, phone, and hours — exactly what Google needs — but not in a format it can read.

WHAT GOOGLE EXPECTS FROM A MENTAL HEALTH WEBSITE

Google holds therapy and mental health websites to a higher standard — they call this YMYL (Your Money or Your Life). Here's what's currently absent from wanderingfreecounseling.com:

Dedicated Therapist Bio Page

The "Meet Erin" nav link goes to your homepage. Google expects a standalone page establishing credentials, training, and experience — especially for a health site.

Machine-Readable Credentials

Your LPCC license and EMDRIA certification exist on the site, but not in a format Google can read and verify. Without schema markup, your credentials are invisible to search engines.

Local Business Verification Signals

No structured data exists on any page. Google uses this to confirm your business name, address, phone, and hours — all of which affect your local map ranking.

Content Depth on Specialty Pages

Two specialty pages have very thin content. When someone searches "perinatal trauma therapy Ohio," Google needs enough content to determine your page is the best answer.

Blog or Resource Content

Your site has no ongoing content. Therapists who publish educational articles consistently outrank those who don't — Google rewards demonstrated, ongoing expertise.

Consistent Location Signals

Your homepage says "Columbus Ohio" but your office is in Dublin, OH. Every location reference needs to match — across your site, Google Business Profile, and directories.
